Current Comment

by
R. H. KNAPPEN

So many hours must I tend my flock;
So many hours must I take my rest;
So many hours must I contemplate;
So many hours must I sport myself;

. . . . . .

So minutes, hours, days
months, and years,
Pass'd over to the end they were created,
Would bring white hairs unto a quiet grave.
Ah, what a life were this!
How sweet!
How lovely!
—W. Shakespeare.

My old friend Joe Gard, who passed peacefully away Monday morning, might not care for the above selection from his favorite author, but I like to think that it pretty well covers the full and happy life he enjoyed.

A great student of Shakespeare, Joe could—and did—recite long passages from the plays, poems, and sonnets of that author. A self-made scholar, he was familiar with many of the classics, and was particularly fond of the philosophy of Omar the Tent Maker. I suspect that, had Omar been contemporary, we would have seen them together quite frequently.

"I'm a rebel," Joe often said, "I've always been a rebel—and most of my friends are rebels." Well, I guess he was. His chief aim in life was to improve the lot of the working man—and his campaigns started long before such campaigns were tolerated by vested interests and smiled upon by a labor-conscious administration. He lived to see many striking social reforms, and I doubt not that his shade will keep a watchful eye on events and further reforms yet to transpire.

Many newcomers to Campbell did not know Joe Gard, for he had been confined to his home for several years; and perhaps some who did know him will regard these words as an over-estimation of just another old man. We who really knew him, however, and who partook to some extent of his philosophy, and enjoyed arguing with him (he usually got the best of it) do not agree. Joe Gard, scholar, philosopher, rebel, and friend extraordinary, will be impossible to replace for many years to come.

Monday was Army Day, and, in spite of the fact there is a war on, army units hereabouts went all-out to show the public what we have in the way of tools of the trade. Those tools looked pretty efficient to the thousands who witnessed San Jose's parade and exhibit in the park. Quite an array of weapons—but none more efficient looking than the bronzed young men who will eventually wield them in actual combat.

Some of you perhaps noted the difference in attitude between these young men and the Nazis on parade in the news reels. The German youths express either a fanatical desire to get themselves killed as soon as possible, or a confused hopelessness which leads to no good on the field. The soldiers we saw Monday wore an air of cheerful confidence—the mark of real fighting men—men who intend to damage the enemy to the fullest extent today and who, with a little luck, will still be on deck to give him another pasting tomorrow.

Funeral Services For Joseph Gard Held Wednesday

Another pioneer resident of Campbell, Joseph B. Gard, passed away early Monday morning in a San Jose hospital after a lingering illness.

Mr. Gard was born in Stockton and had passed his 86th birthday. He had lived in Lake county, but most of his life in Campbell. His wife, Emma Jane Gard, preceded him in death last May.

Last rites were held Wednesday morning from the funeral home of Curry and Gripenstraw, with the Rev. Robert Whitaker of Los Gatos in charge with cremation at the Chapel of Roses, Oak Hill Memorial Park.

Rev. Whitaker had been a personal friend of many years and on several occasions had written verses in commemoration of Mr. Gard's birthdays or wedding anniversary. He referred to Mr. Gard's love of reading and committing to memory of reams of poetry and sections of Shakespeare.

Surviving members of the family are a daughter, Mrs. Lela B. McCoy, three sons, Claude, Luman and Herbert Gard; brother, Earl Gard of Campbell; and sisters, Mrs. Julia Rankin, Pendleton, Ore., and Mrs. Lou Kinley, San Francisco.

Beach, L. Pizzo, E. Barnett, and R. Bogner. The top team at the end of the season will be given an extra award at the party for the after-school sports teams, the losing teams to be hosts.

THE NEW ARRIVAL

Marilyn Knopf Is Bride of Robert Swift

At an attractive home wedding Miss Marilyn Fay Knopf became the recent bride of Robert Swift of Sunnyvale.

An attractive altar of tall white lilies, ferns and tall white tapers had been arranged in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maynard C. Knopf, West Dry Creek road, before which the Rev. Homer Bodley of Sunnyvale performed the marriage ceremony.

The bride who was given away by her father wore a suit of beige and spring green with white accessories and her flowers were white sweet peas, freesias and gardenias. Her sister, Miss Lois Knopf was bridesmaid and had chosen a print of dusty rose and her flowers were lilies and stocks.

Warren Knopf, brother of the bride served as best man.

The southern part of the state was chosen for the honeymoon, with the future home to be in San Jose.

Mother and Baby Escape Injury

Mrs. Bernard Watson of North Second street and her infant daughter had a narrow escape from serious injury if not possible death yesterday noon, when the mother carrying the baby, was knocked down by an automobile at First and San Fernando streets in San Jose.

Gilbert Leroy of Santa Clara, who was driving the car, called friends in another car who took Mrs. Watson and the baby to a hospital where it was found no injury had befallen the baby and the mother had a bruised hip.

Patrolman Harley Adams said the car was moving at a slow speed.

Mrs. Watson's husband is principal of the Cambrian school and their many friends are happy that no serious injuries resulted from the accident.

Kiwanians Hear Roy Emerson On Civilian Defense

The Kiwanis club found another speaker and program awaiting them on Tuesday than the one scheduled but found them both very interesting.

Roy P. Emerson, chief of the county civilian defense described the progress of Civilian Observation posts, and reported that the Campbell post has been operating at 100 per cent efficiency which means that no plane which should have been reported had escaped. Only three posts have had this record.

Dr. W. I. Merrill, one of the committee in charge of organizing the post, acted as chairman.

Cyril Peterman was officially inducted as a new member by Junior Past President Joe Gomes.

Maurice Moore, inter-club chairman of the Mt. View Kiwanis was present to invite the local club to participate in an interclub meeting.

A group of eleven instrumentalists from the high school gave a 15 minute program, the members and their selections being announced by Bob Wheeler, pianist.

Next week, Tully Knoles, Jr., of the Palo Alto High school faculty and director of the Community Players in San Jose will give a talk on "A Yank in England," and Herold Morton will officiate.

Louis Grays Sue For Damages

Louis L. and Josephine C. Gray have filed suit for $5753 damages against Laura H. Commerville and Julian W. Castillo. The suit is to recover damages for injuries which Mrs. Gray sustained in an automobile collision on Moorpark avenue, near the county hospital on March 3 and for repairs to their automobile.

Mrs. Gray received cuts, bruises and shock as listed in the complaint. The Grays are represented by Louis Oneal.

Club Members Enjoy Visit to Unusual Home

It was a lovely, sunny spring day on Monday when the members of the Country Woman's club motored up the penninsula to Stanford and Palo Alto for their annual pilgrimage to a spot of beauty. The caravan of cars was led by Mrs. Nellie Rutherford, hostess for the day.

Francesco de Lemos welcomed the ladies at the Stanford museum. He told briefly of the history of the university and directed the group's study of the various exhibits in the museum and art gallery. An exceptionally fine exhibit of the oil paintings of Jean Manneheim was displayed in the gallery.

The group enjoyed the cool, peaceful splendor of the famous Stanford Chapel with its beautiful mosaic murals the construction and work of which were explained by Mr. de Lemos.

Luncheon was served on the delightful terrace of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francesco de Lemos, who are personal friends of Mrs. Rutherford.

After luncheon the group motored to "Hacienda de Lemos" the Palo Alto home of Pedro de Lemos, well known artist and editor of "School Arts" magazine. Mr. de Lemost, in his most gracious manner, showed the ladies his unusual and truly charming home.

The architectural style of the house has been copied by Mr. de Lemos from the provincial estates of Galicia, Spain, the abode of de Lemos' ancestry. The entire house and garden was an expression of good taste. About each room lovely objects of art were displayed. Many of these things are museum pieces and are the result of years of collecting. Mr. de Lemos punctuated his tour with amusing and interesting personal anecdotes which delighted the ladies. It was indeed a privilege to visit this unique home.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the day were: Mrs. Nellie Rutherford, hostess, Mrs. Stephen Casaleggio, Mrs. Ira Grim, Mrs. L. J. Carboni, Mrs. Rudolph Nelson, and Mrs. Laura M. Keesling.

Observance of Public Schools Week April 30

Thursday, April 30 is the date set for open house at the Campbell Union High school when a program celebrating Public Schools Week is being arranged.

Because of the emergency existing, the observance will be held during the day rather than at night.

Parents are invited to attend the various classrooms in which regular class sessions will be in progress. There will be various exhibits on display through the high school buildings.

Mrs. Carl Field Installed As New President of PTA

The newly elected officers of the Campbell Union High School P.-T. A. were installed by Mrs. Douglas Jones, president of El Paradiso Council, at the April meeting of the organization on Wednesday afternoon in the Little Theater of the high school.

The activities of the unit for the ensuing year will be under the leadership of Mrs. Carl B. Field as president. The other officers installed were: first vice president, Mrs. Clarence Fagalde; second vice president, Miss Frances Parks; secretary, Mrs. H. F. Cousins; treasurer, Mrs. Joseph Leverton; financial secretary, Willard H. Van Dyke; auditor, Mrs. Charles Dondero; historian, Mrs. Ray Wood; and parliamentarian, Mrs. Anthony Jurras.

The committee chairmen were also announced and presented to the members. Founders' Day chairman will be Mrs. Dan Clark; health, Mrs. Alfreda Runge; magazines, Mrs. Life Price; membership, Miss Frances Parks; music, Miss Florence Smith; refreshments, Mrs. Ed Benech; Study Group, Mrs. Franklin Blaine; publicity, Mrs. Arnold Applegarth.

Mrs. Douglas Jones, guest speaker of the day, discussed with the group "Educational Opportunity." As a delightful surprise Marilyn Van Dyke and Joyce Klassen, gowned in girlish long dresses, sang "My Alice Blue Gown" and "Little Old Lady." Mrs. David Sanders accompanied the duet. Sonny Smeed presented a trumpet solo.

The members voted to sponsor immediately a Salvage and Victory campaign to get papers, tin cans, bottles, metals, and any other useful materials. The community is urged to cooperate in this effort.

May 13 will be the last meeting of this current school year, and the faculty members will be hosts of the afternoon. Questions placed in the question box will be answered by the faculty.

The meeting adjourned for refreshments served by the grammar school unit.

Garden Section Of Pundita Circle Met Yesterday

The garden section of Pundita Circle met with Mrs. George Smith, Jr., on Sunnyoaks avenue yesterday for a pot luck luncheon.

The gardens of the hostess and her mother, Mrs. J. J. Pardee, next door were inspected and Mrs. M. E. Purmort read an interesting article on the legends of the flowers associated with the Crucifixion and Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Knappen and son James were dinner guests Thursday evening of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Shank, Jr., and family in Burbank.

United States In War

TWENTY-FIVE years ago this week, a tensely expectant Congress, assembled in joint session, heard America's 28th president call for a declaration of war. On that day of April 6, 1917, in Congress and in the nation, there was a widespread conviction that the war had only to be won in order to bring true that dream of a happy post-war world which Woodrow Wilson eloquently outlined in his war message:

"Our object is to vindicate the principles of peace and justice in the life of the world. It is a fearful thing to lead this great peaceful nation into a war. But the right is more precious than the peace and we shall fight . . . for democracy, for the right of liberties of small nations, for a universal dominion of right by such a concert of free peoples as shall bring peace and safety to all nations and make the world itself at last free."

Today, a quarter of a century later, the United States finds itself engaged in a second World War whose magnitude far surpasses all past wars. Something went wrong with the dream of a happy post-war world after we won a triumphant victory. What was it? There is no single, simple answer. It is a matter of record, however, that there has been little international decency in the last ten years or so, and without international decency there can be no peace among nations. Insolent aggressor powers made merry without let or hindrance from others until, swollen with pomp, pride and spoils, they did not fear to challenge the large, but ill-prepared peace loving nations. We wanted to mind our own business, and hoped that others would do likewise. The ounce of prevention that might have set the barbarian sabre-rattlers reeling back into oblivion a decade ago was never used. In a world which has shown itself to be a pretty small neighborhood, we can no more in the future permit loud-mouthed, murderous neighbors to disturb the peace, lest they end up by terrorizing the whole community. Come armistice day, we must carry forward the battle of peace.

A Mickey Finn for Tojo

GREATER PATRIOTISM hath no barfly, than that he lay his flask of schnaaps on the altar of victory.

That was the sentiment voiced somewhat whimsically, and somewhat fearfully, along U. S. bars last week after Dr. William J. Hae, told a senate committee that industrial alcohol made from grain is the key to victory in the war, and that we need 700,000,000 gallons of it, an amount to tax our alcohol-making resources.

What, then, if there won't be spare alcohol for whiskey? There was moaning at the bar, and a quick call for a round for all hands. Yet barkeeps squared their shoulders manfully, whiskey tenors broke out in "Remember Pearl Harbor," and one rheumy-eyed barfly is reported as forming a victory V with jittery fingers and coining the wartime slogan of the saloon

"Water for the duration is okay by me, boys—if it means slipping a Mickey Finn to Tojo."

Own Your Own Home

(Half of it, Anyway!)

TACKLING THE problem of over-burdened housing conditions in war-populous San Diego, real estate strategists have come up with the half-a-house plan. The builder puts up a structure containing a kitchen, living room and bathroom—and the couple move in. The construction is so arranged that two bedrooms, two closets and a hall can be added whenever desired. Thus the housing emergency is met, and the young couple short on money start housekeeping in the equivalent of the average city apartment.

Even from so small a thing as 50 per cent of a bungalow, great deductions may be drawn. Tribute to the ways-and-means resourcefulness of California's world champion real estate men is obvious. But also it is cheeringly demonstrated that neither wars nor rumors of bombings have much effect on the instinct of the young man in springtime to provide his bride with a home of her own. It is also demonstrated that the good earth of California remains the most attractive investment in war as in peace—for the little chap buying three rooms as well as the investment company buying a skyscraper. Next to war bonds and stamps, about the safest spot for savings is a California house—or half a house.

"God Give Us Men"

NEVER HAS an election year come in circumstances more solemn or dramatic than those of 1942. While millions of Americans will be standing in voting booths, deciding freely upon candidates and issues, other Americans will be dying in far places so that the government of the American people shall endure for our children and our children's children.

With ballots made valid with American blood, Californians will elect a war-crisis Governor and other officials, and throughout America Congressmen and state officials will be named. The soundness, the wisdom, the fundamental rightness of democratic self-rule faces a supreme test.

Generations ago, when the wounds of the Civil War were yet bleeding and the fevers of fraternal hatreds and sectional bitterness racked the public mind, an American editor, Josiah Gilbert Holland, wrote a poem that was a prayer on an election eve. He did not plead for victory for any man, any party, any creed, any factional cause. He wrote:

"God give us men! A time like this demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith, ready hands;
Men whom the lust of office does not kill;
Men whom the spoils of office can not buy;
Men who possess opinion and a will;
Men who have honor; men who will not lie."

A time like this, too, demands men—men of strong minds, great hearts, true faith, ready hands. It isn't of primary importance in this embattled democracy whether the individual candidate for public service be Jew, Gentile, Republican, Democratic, Catholic, Protestant, conservative or liberal. It is of the utmost consequence that all be men whom the lust of office does not kill, whom the spoils of office cannot buy, men who have honor, men who will not lie.

In the patriotic choosing of such men, the voters have the duty to keep the democratic faith at home —as MacArthur is keeping the soldier's faith beyond the Pacific.

Stopping the Death Driver

SHOULD THE RUBBER shortage become so acute that all pleasure motoring were banned, there would be one silver streak in the dark cloud of transportation curtailment—the grounding of that deadly American phenomenon, the death driver.

A recent safety study shows that more Americans have been killed by automobiles than by all hostile armies in all wars since Lexington! Since 1923, more than 500,000 highway accident deaths have been recorded — more than twice the 240,000 killed in the Revolutionary War, War of 1812, Mexican War, Indian Wars, Civil War, World War I, and this war to date!

The highway destroyer of life and property is as dangerous as a deliberate saboteur. He should be grounded for the duration whenever his irresponsible tendencies are discovered.

MOVIES' WAR EFFORT RESULT OF TWO YEARS PLANNING

Hepburn and Tracy Star in Government Films

The bombs that shook Pearl Harbor and plunged America full-tilt into war against the fascist Axis found the Motion Picture Industry prepared for all-out contribution to victory.

Overnight the "Motion Picture Committee Cooperating for National Defense," set up two years before, became the "War Activities Committee."

Inspirational and morale-building films from government agencies are flowing through the committee in steady stream to 12,500 theatres which are pledged to show them without cost to the government. They are reaching an estimated total of eighty million persons weekly.

One of these subjects is the Treasury Department's "The New Spirit" in which Walt Disney's Donald Duck explains the Axis-smashing qualities of income tax dollars. Also, already made and showing or ready to show, are such films as "Tanks" with commentary by Orson Welles, "Women in Defense" with writing by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and commentary by Katherine Hepburn, "Bomber" with commentary by Carl Sandburg, "Ring of Steel" with commentary by Spencer Tracy and direction by Garson Kanin, and "Safeguarding Military Information," which was produced for the War Department by the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

By means of the motion pictures which the Committee is producing and distributing the 130,000,000 people of America are being made visually aware of shipbuilding, airplane fabrication, munition making, troop training and all of the elements composing the five M's of victory—men, material, mobilization, money and morale. The film industry, from office boy to glamor girl, is meeting the task with fighting enthusiasm, while continuing to provide wholesome entertainment as well.

Mrs. Ella Derr of Independence, Iowa, is visiting Mrs. Lavinia Grattan at her home on North Central. The ladies were college friends in Iowa and have continued their friendship throughout the following years.

Mrs. Ray Wood is announcing that the long awaited Red Cross quota of sewing materials will be on hand for the next meeting, Wednesday, April 15. The ladies are urged to be present to begin on the new work.

THE BOOK MARK

by marty

..."Then Came the Test" by Margaret Pedler.

We have been through one "war" book after another recently, until our hearts and minds have grown very heavy with gruesomeness and hopeless thoughts of the brutality of mankind. So in the past few days we have been doing a bit of pleasure-reading, as it were.

If you have read any one of a number of Margaret Pedler's books you are more or less acquainted with her type of story, for her books run true to her sweet, but not too gushy, English love story pattern. The hero always wins the love of the girl his heart yearns for, but he has to prove himself first. Oh, its heartwarming and good to read.

The author's ability to create breathless situations is great. Why, I actually skipped over sentences, and even paragraphs, to find out how the hero and the heroine got out of many of their numerous scrapes.

Raine Sherwood, the heroine, who at the beginning of the book was celebrating her twenty-first birthday with an elaborate party, was everything feminine and alluring that a leading lady should be, coupled with the distinctive ability of riding that occupies so much of English social activities. She could ride "the hunt" with the best of the gentlemen riders. She could ski on the sporting and treacherous slopes of the Alps with the most skilled skiers. In fact there were not very many accomplishments in the field of sports that she was not capable of vying with the highest in ability.

Into her wealthy, busy and secluded world at Strowan Court, her family estate in the English countryside, one bright day rode Grif Buchanan, an English army man home from India for a short visit. With the romantic glitter of the Far Eastern air about him, Grif rode straight into the heart of Raine, as she did into his the very first time they laid eyes on each other. It is their errors and trials and the solutions and dissolutions of them that make the tale exciting. It is a courageous, thrilling love story.

Thrilling Mystery Now Being Cast

Mrs. Robert Weaver, director of The Footlighters, announces that the cast is being chosen for their next play. The play is to be a real thriller entitled "The Scarecrow Creeps" by Jay Tobias.

The play is to be given on May 15 and is being sponsored by the Country Woman's club. Proceeds will be used where most needed in defense projects.

Arthur Tindall is a new member of the grammar school faculty, taking the position held by Nick Barbiarie, shop and physical education teacher. He has taken a position in the San Juan Union High school at Fair Oaks as full time physical education instructor. He was at the local grammar school eight months.

SHIPS MAY WIN THE WAR

THE giant keel assembly of a 10,000-ton cargo vessel takes shape in a West Coast Canadian shipyard. When completed, this ship will be capable of carrying the following cargo in ONE voyage: Enough flour, cheese, bacon, ham, canned and dried fruits to feed 225,000 persons in Britain for a week; 2,150 tons of steel bars and slabs; enough Bren Gun carriers, trucks and motorcycles to motorize an infantry battalion; enough bombs to load 950 medium bombers or 225 heavy bombers; enough lumber and plywood, wallboard and nails to build 90 four-room cottages; two complete bombers stowed on the after deck, and enough aluminum in the hold to build 310 medium bombers or 640 fighter planes in England. Canada's production of these ships now almost equals that of British ship yards.

Donald Genasci, son of Ed Genasci of Campbell, will play an important part in arranging the exhibits for the electrical department of the college for the 1942 "country fair on a college campus."

One of the leading attractions will be the livestock competitions in which prize beef, hogs and sheep will be shown.

A wonder working little machine, the Perfection Poultry Picker, which plucks a chicken clean of all feathers in twelve seconds will headline the show at the poultry unit, with other attractions to be young chicks under brooders.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

Carey McWilliams, whose well-paid job as Chief of the State Division of Immigration and Housing seems to allow him ample leisure for extra-curricular activity, has authored a new book on "the agricultural revolution" that is supposed to make farmers in general, and California farmers in particular, repent of their sins and turn over a new economic furrow .

Somberly entitled, Ill Fares The Land, this new McWilliams volume is a dull book for the most part, composed largely of excerpts from the warped and notoriously one-sided report of the so-called LaFollette Committee. As a book it would hardly merit reviewing but as a somewhat unwitting revelation of the philosophy and teachings of Mr. McWilliams, who occupies a state office of considerable importance, it deserves attention.

McWilliams has consistently preached the socialization of California agriculture almost from the first day he received his portfolia from Governor Olson in January, 1939 and his book throws some interesting lights on his beliefs and objectives.

In his new book, for example he notes with approval that the I. W. W. aided materially in forcing up farm wages between 1914 and 1917 but he adds: "Unfortunately, however, both the Non-Partisan league and the I. W. W. were crushed after the U. S. entered the war."

Again, Mr. McWilliams reveals the pattern which he would like to see followed in "organizing" farm labor in this revealing paragraph: "Trade - union organization would be one of the most effective means of coping with the problem of surplus workers in agriculture. Waterfront employment, like farm employment, is casual. Yet waterfront unions have rationalized employment practices to a great extent in the last decade." The methods employed by the waterfront unions in "rationalizing" employment have included the beef squad, the closed shop, union hiring hall, secondary boycott and a general strike which resulted in bloodshed, but Mr. McWilliams failed to explain the "methods" in his book.

What McWilliams thinks of farm groups are quoted in his book Ill Fares The Land:

"The powerful American Farm Bureau Federation is fairly characterized as a 'company union' of farmers."

"Through cooperative associations, many specialized problems, such as marketing, are shifted from the farmer to the farm group. By and large, however, these developments have increased the operating efficiency of the large farm at the expense of the small farm." That will certainly rank as "news" to the 70,000 farmers who are members of California farm co-ops.

What does Mr. McWilliams think of farms and farmers?

"There is no reason to be sentimental about farmers." In another chapter, he notes that the mechanization of the farm has transformed "much farming into a highly sedentary business." Again: "Due to the absence of labor standards, many of our farms are nothing but sweatshops." That doesn't jibe with his previous reference to farming as a "sedentary" occupation, but consistency is not one of the jewels in Mr. McWilliams' crown.

Generaly McWilliams complains that the "family-sized farm" is passing out of the picture, due to the machinations of Wall street and the blandishments of tractor salesmen; that farms are "organized primarily to make money," which seems to be a hideous development designed to exploit the masses, and that California, after starting out with a "liberal" relief program succumbed to a "vicious campaign . . .to slash relief appropriations."

There's much more of the same, but most of it is not worth the time of people who have to earn their living by the sweat of their brows. In one of his chapters, Mr. McWilliams even takes not of the fact that he was once referred to as "Agricultural Pest No. 1 of California." That, however, is over-statement; Mr. McWilliams isn't that important. It is simply unfortunate that a man who holds such a poor opinion of California's farmers and rural people should hold a state office where he has considerable authority over them.
